Lightweight, Containerized Automated Testing Solutions

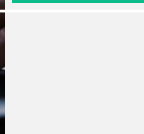

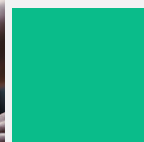

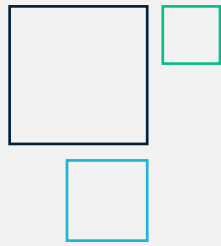

Problem

The world's largest construction equipment manufacturer needed to schedule multiple deployments through a new remote work process hotline tool primed for implementation. Unfortunately, because of testing bottlenecks, their existing environment could support only one scheduled deployment per month. Due to this, deployment times ranged from multiple weeks to months to complete the automated testing on the changes to the system. This was deemed an unacceptable delay by leadership.

Solution

Aditi provided a scalable solution to containerize their existing environment while improving testing times. Aditi deployed a focused team of senior talent efficiently and effectively develop a containerized environment as a proof-of-concept, and to actively deploy the same in a live environment. Along the way, the team provided bi-weekly demos to client stakeholders to ensure alignment with the corporate vision. The solution was tested and demonstrated to senior stakeholders within three months, which was much faster than anticipated.

Result

The team worked with end users, development, and architecture teams, to make a viable single lightweight executable solution, including automated testing scripts, automated testing cases, and then running automated tests. These efforts expedited deployment timelines significantly and exceeded management's project expectations.
